1. Call to Order, Land Acknowledgement, and Principles of Shared Governance:

Land Acknowledgement

We stand upon a land that carries the footsteps of millennia of Kumeyaay people. They are a people whose traditional lifeways intertwine with a worldview of earth and sky in a community of living beings. This land is part of a relationship that has nourished, healed, protected and embraced the Kumeyaay people to the present day. It is part of a world view founded in the harmony of the cycles of the sky and balance in the forces of life. For the Kumeyaay, red and black represent the balance of those forces that provide for harmony within our bodies as well as the world around us.

As students, faculty, staff and alumni of San Diego State University we acknowledge this legacy from the Kumeyaay. We promote this balance in life as we pursue our goals of knowledge and understanding. We find inspiration in the Kumeyaay spirit to open our minds and hearts. It is the legacy of the red and black. It is the land of the Kumeyaay.

Eyay e’Hunn My heart is good.

Michael Miskwish – Kumeyaay

Principles of Shared Governance:

Trust is recognized as a fundamental ingredient that is essential for effective shared governance. Without trust, the practices of partnership, inclusion, open communication, ownership, and accountability are likely to break down. SDSU community members have identified three key principles for shared governance at SDSU that all rely on the fundamental ingredient of TRUST: Respect, Communication, Responsibility.

AR&P, which directly advises the President on budgetary issues, includes individuals who serve the University at the pleasure of the President. While the membership of upper management is necessary to provide budgetary expertise, it can be problematic in times of institutional financial stress. Within the UR&P Proposal is the addition of four(4) Vice Presidents or their designees. To maintain the balance of the committee, and perhaps, credibility during these difficult times, I recommend the following additions to the UR&P Proposal. Recommended additions to revised membership to UR&P: Three(3) full-time faculty senators, selected by a vote of faculty members of the Senate, and the Senate Chair or their designee.	University Resources & Policy

11/2019		19/20_35	SDSU Ethnic Studies Requirement	1. With the goal of the 2020-21 academic year, and no later than the 2021-22 academic year, SDSU shall require, as a new undergraduate graduation requirement (distinct from the existing GE Diversity Requirement), the completion of, at minimum, one three-unit course in Ethnic Studies. The university shall not increase the number of units required to graduate from the university with a baccalaureate degree by the enforcement of this requirement. 2. In order to minimize the impacts on current curricula and graduation requirements, this three-unit Ethnic Studies requirement can: a. Be fulfilled through a lower division class in Africana Studies, American Indian Studies, Chicano/a Studies, or Asian American Studies (within the Center for Asian and Pacific Studies), except lower division Ethnic Studies classes that also fulfill the Oral and Written Communications Requirements for General Education. Classes from Africana Studies, American Indian Studies, Chicano/a Studies, and Asian American Studies (within the Center for Asian and Pacific Studies) that currently meet the GE Diversity Requirement will no longer do so and instead will count for the Ethnic Studies Requirement. 3. Other specifics of the Ethnic Studies Requirement will be determined after seeking guidance from the Ethnic Studies departments (including the Center for Asian and Pacific Studies). Such guidance, to be received by December 31, 2019, shall include reflections on: a. The Ethnic Studies Task Force Report and other relevant updates and reports, as well as campus context, “What is to be included as Learning Outcomes specific to Ethnic Studies as derived from current best practices in the field of Ethnic Studies?” b. What best practices should be encouraged for SDSU to adopt in their course evaluation and approval processes for meeting the Ethnic Studies outcome requirements in order to maximize consistency and integrity of the requirement. c. The student has completed an Ethnic Studies course at a postsecondary educational institution accredited by a regional accrediting agency. 5. The College of Health & Human Services' School of Public Health requests approval to implement a self-support counterpart to an existing state-supported degree. A new instance of the Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology will be established and offered through SDSU Global Campus. The proposed advisor for this new offering is Dr. Eyal Oren. The program sponsor (coordinating logistical and hiring decisions with Global Campus) will be Dr. Jennifer Munday.

With expected labor market growth in this area above average at 12-15% growth over the next 10 years, this hybrid program is designed to meet the increasing demand for public health professionals. It will be an intensive, hybrid Master's program running year-round. The new instance will serve a student population that cannot participate in the existing program due to the modes of instruction, class times and/or total program length.

This self-support offering meets all degree requirements for the existing state-support program, and no substantive changes are needed to the Graduate Bulletin. Although there will be only one Graduate Bulletin entry for this Master's degree, the state-supported and self-supported instances will have different SIMS major codes. The new instance meets all requirements of Executive Order 1099 for self-support programs. Students in the state- and self-supported instances of this Master's degree will not register for courses from the alternative version. Registration exceptions will be very rare, and subject to approval by Graduate Studies.

This proposal has been approved by Drs. Oren and Munday, Dr. Hala Madanat (former Director of the School of Public Health), and HHS Dean Hooker. Graduate Council has reviewed and approved the academic components.

Request to Implement a Self-Support Counterpart
of a Previously Approved State-Support Program
(Executive Order 1099, Article 11.1.2.3)

We request approval to implement a self-support counterpart of a previously approved, state-support Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology which is an existing degree.

Specification of the Program’s Qualifications to Operate on a Self-Support Basis (Executive Order 1099, Article 5.1 and 5.2)

The hybrid Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology, an intensive master’s program, would run year-round and satisfies Article 5.1 and Article 5.2, paragraphs a., b., and c.

Article 5.1

- a. Article 5.1.1 CSU operating funds are unavailable or inappropriate during Summer Sessions or Intersessions between college terms.
- b. Article 5.1.2 Students will be charged the full cost of instruction and any applicable campus-based fees for extended education programs.
- c. Article 5.1.3 Students will not be charged the nonresident tuition fee in addition to the extended education fees.

Article 5.2

- a. Article 5.2.a A large portion of the potential students are working adults.
- b. Article 5.2.b The program is not located on permanent, state-support campus facilities.
- c. Article 5.2.c The program curriculum is delivered online with a field placement component that will be in-person.

Confirmation that the Existing State-Support Offering is not being Supplanted (Executive Order 1099. Article 6.1)

Article 6.1 Supplanting

- a. Article 6.1.1 Self-supporting special sessions will not supplant regular course offerings available on a non-self-supporting basis during the regular academic year. The fully-online didactic courses for the self-support program will be promoted to students who, because of work schedule, geographic location, or other reasons cannot attend primarily face-to-face instruction and therefore need hybrid instruction.

- b. Article 6.1.2 State-supported matriculated students will not be required to enroll in self-support courses in order to fulfill the graduation requirements of a state-supported degree program.

The self-support Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology is a cohort-based graduate program. For students admitted to the self-support program, the use of an hybrid modality facilitates program completion in two years and at a pace that meets the needs of working adults. All online lecture-based courses in the program use a standardized template and are modularized so that they can be completed successfully in eight weeks. The field internship courses that require a 15-week face to face commitment will be offered on the basis of 15-week terms instead of eight weeks. The majority of the coursework offered will be online, with the critical field placement portion face-to-face, resulting in this hybrid model.

All students must meet the general requirements for advancement to candidacy, satisfactorily pass a faculty evaluation of the progress that they are making in their graduate course of study, complete the core courses (Public Health 601, 602, 603, 604), have a grade point average of at least 3.0 and no grade less than a B– in each core course completed, and have completed at least 12 semester units of approved public health coursework. In addition, the student must be recommended for advancement to candidacy by the faculty of the School of Public Health.

In addition to meeting the requirements for classified graduate standing and the basic requirements for the master's degree the student must complete an officially approved course of study of not less than 51 units including: Public Health 601, 602, 603, 604, and 605, a minimum of 21 units of graduate courses in Epidemiology, complete a minimum of three and a maximum of 12 units of supervised field placement, and electives selected with the approval of the graduate adviser. In addition, Public Health 797, Research, Public Health 798, Special Study, or Public Health 799A, Thesis, must be included in the program as a capstone experience. The Epidemiology concentration requires three units of field placement for the Master of Public Health degree. Up to nine units of graduate credit may be accepted in transfer, with the approval of the graduate adviser. In special circumstances, the graduate adviser may approve one course not on the list of prescribed electives. The substitution must be approved prior to enrollment in the course.

Rationale for Program and New Support Mode

The purpose of this Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology program would be targeting a different audience; namely those with at least three years of work experience, who are currently working in the field, need a Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology to advance in their careers, and are unable to attend our face to face programs. In addition, a letter of commitment from their employer will be requested to ensure the employer is committed to providing some flexibility for the student to participate in the program and maybe assist with the student's capstone. The program will be run by the School of Public Health, internships will be obtained either through the student's current employer or another site of the program director's recommendation, and will be taught by a mix of lecturers and tenure track faculty. Director Nick Macchione, representing our main partner agency, County of San Diego's Health and Human Services Agency, has indicated his support and believes many of his staff would be great candidates for the program.

Detailed Cost-Recovery Budget

Detailed five-year cost-recovery budget attached. The following are estimated student costs of the self-support program:

- Fees per unit - $562
- Total cost to complete the program
 - 51 Units - $28,662

Anticipated Enrollment and Demand

Anticipated enrollment from the first admission cycle of the self-support program is up to 30 students with an expected minimum enrollment of 22 students, based on a 14% attrition rate.

There were nearly 228,000 employed nationwide in careers requiring this degree and over 27,000 job listings nationally last year. Anticipated job growth over the next 10 years for related jobs requiring this degree is 12-15%, much higher than the baseline average of 7-8%, with data-driven occupations ranking higher than medical or clinical occupations in this market. Salaries average at $60K which is higher than the national average of $47K, in a range of $45K to $108K.

2019 research shows high search demand for hybrid master's of public health and/or epidemiology degrees, showing from 1000 to 18,100 monthly searches for associated keywords.

Marketing and promotion of the program will be handled by Global Campus and the College of Health and Human Services marketing staff.

Campus Commitment to Provide Adequate Faculty Resources

Faculty who teach state-supported courses in the Master of Public Health, Concentration in Epidemiology have been contacted regarding their willingness to participate in the design and delivery of hybrid equivalents to their current face-to-face courses in accord with the Quality Online Learning and Teaching (QOLT) instrument developed by the CSU. The level of faculty interest is very high. They are excited by the prospect of teaching working adults in a hybrid format. The School of Public Health has more than sufficient capacity to provide the necessary teaching on an overload basis. Because this is a regular degree program, it will be carefully examined by the Council on Education for Public Health (CEPH). The program will be accredited by implementation and remains so until the next scheduled accreditation review. When reviewed, it will be subject to the same accreditation criteria (i.e., faculty, curricula, student qualifications) as the on-campus programs.

There are no variances in curriculum between the existing approved face-to-face and the proposed hybrid program. However, electives will be selected by the department to be offered online as part of this program and may not include the entire list of electives offered in the face to face campus program.

Anticipated Impact on the Existing State-Supported Program

There is no anticipated impact on state-support regular course offerings because of the self-support program. The hybrid delivery modality, format, and target audience (working adults) differentiates this program from the state-side, face-to-face program.

The College of Health & Human Services' School of Social Work requests approval to implement a self-support counterpart to an existing state-supported degree. A new instance of the Master of Social Work will be established and offered through SDSU Global Campus. The proposed advisor for this new offering is Dr. Jong-Won Min. The program sponsor (coordinating logistical and hiring decisions with Global Campus) will be Dr. Annie Keeney.

With expected labor market growth in this area above average at 16% growth over the next 10 years, this hybrid program is designed to meet the increasing demand for social work professionals. It will be an intensive, hybrid Master's program running year-round. The new instance will serve a student population that cannot participate in the existing program due to the modes of instruction, class times and/or total program length.

This self-support offering meets all degree requirements for the existing state-support program, and no substantive changes are needed to the Graduate Bulletin. Although there will be only one Graduate Bulletin entry for this Master's degree, the state-supported and self-supported instances will have different SIMS major codes. The new instance meets all requirements of Executive Order 1099 for self-support programs. Students in the state- and self-supported instances of this Master's degree will not register for courses from the alternative version. Registration exceptions will be very rare, and subject to approval by Graduate Studies.

This proposal has been approved by Drs. Jong-Won Min and Annie Keeney, and HHS Dean Hooker. Graduate Council has reviewed and approved the academic components.

Request to Implement a Self-Support Counterpart
of a Previously Approved State-Support Program
(Executive Order 1099, Article 11.1.2.3)

We request approval to implement a self-support counterpart of a previously approved, state-support Master of Social Work (MSW) degree, which is an existing major.

Specification of the Program’s Qualifications to Operate on a Self-Support Basis (Executive Order 1099, Article 5.1 and 5.2)

The Master of Social Work is a hybrid, intensive master’s degree program that would run year-round and satisfies Article 5.1 and Article 5.2 paragraphs a., b., and c.

Article 5.1

- a. Article 5.1.1 CSU operating Funds are unavailable or inappropriate during Summer Sessions or Intersessions between college terms.
- b. Article 5.1.2 Students will be charged the full cost of instruction and any applicable campus-based fees for extended education programs.
- c. Article 5.1.3 Students will not be charged the nonresident tuition fee in addition to extended education fees.

Article 5.2

- a. Article 5.2.a A large portion of the potential students are working adults.
- b. Article 5.2.b The program is not located on permanent, state-supported campus facilities.
- c. Article 5.2.c The program curriculum is delivered online with a field placement component that will be in-person.

Confirmation that the Existing State-Support Offering is not being Supplanted (Executive Order 1099, Article 6.1)

Article 6.1 Supplanting

- a. Article 6.1.1 Self-supporting special sessions will not supplant regular course offerings available on a non-self-supporting basis during the regular academic year. The fully-online didactic courses for the self-support program will be promoted to students who, because of work schedule, geographic location, or other reasons cannot attend primarily face-to-face instruction and therefore need hybrid instruction.
- b. Article 6.1.2 State-supported matriculated students will not be required to enroll in self-support courses in order to fulfill the graduation requirements of a state-supported degree program.

The self-support MSW is a cohort-based graduate program. For students admitted to the self-support program, the use of a hybrid modality facilitates program completion in as few as 2 years and at a pace that meets the needs of working adults. All online lecture-based courses in the program use a standardized template and are modularized so that they can be completed successfully in eight weeks. The field internship courses that require a 15-week face to face commitment will be offered on the basis of 15-week terms instead of eight weeks. The majority of the coursework offered will be online, with the critical field placement portion face-to-face, resulting in this hybrid model.

The hybrid MSW program will focus on the Direct Practice focus area. In the Direct Practice focus area, focus is on interpersonal relationships and social functioning with emphasis on appropriate intervention methods used primarily with individuals, families, and groups. Emphasis is placed on a problem-solving framework that utilizes assessment/diagnosis, intervention/treatment and evaluative skills.

In addition to the methods focus of the program of study, the curriculum provides students the opportunity to develop knowledge and skills in a specialized field of service while meeting their advanced human behavior, advanced social policy, advanced field practicum, and elective requirements. Students, with guidance from the graduate adviser and a faculty member serving as a professional mentor, select coursework that address their specific educational and career goals. Based on the current strengths of the school's faculty, students can use their coursework and their field practicum to develop specialized knowledge in the areas of child welfare, family services, mental health, aging, substance abuse, and health. In addition, students may use thesis research to extend their knowledge in one of these areas.

The program would qualify students to apply for the Licensed Clinical Social Worker (LCSW) certification process by the Board of Behavioral Science Examiners of the State of California. This degree must be completed within seven consecutive calendar years after initial registration.

Rationale for Program and New Support Mode

This program is designed to meet the needs of students who want a hybrid degree option. This group includes working adults whose work hours preclude attendance of primarily face-to-face classes on campus, working adults who would prefer to attend a hybrid program, and other interested students who prefer to study in a hybrid modality.

Initial interest in this program was expressed by social work undergraduate alumni and human/social service professionals in the community who were extremely positive about having a hybrid Social Work graduate degree program to enhance their knowledge and skills, and in turn, improve the quality of service delivery to clients and populations in need. Because an MSW degree is so popular among the target student groups that will be served by this program, even community agencies with entry-level social workers are particularly supportive of this opportunity for their employees, and other working adults to get this degree. This program has been presented to the School of Social Work faculty who expressed strong support for this program.

The purpose of this MSW program would be targeting a different audience; namely those with at least one year of work experience, who are currently working in the field, need an MSW to advance in their careers, and are unable to attend our solely face-to-face programs. The program will be run by the School of Social Work.

Detailed Cost-Recovery Budget

Detailed five-year cost-recovery budget attached. The following are estimated student costs of the self-support program:

- Fees per unit - $799
- Total cost to complete the program
– 60 units – $47,940

Anticipated Enrollment and Demand

Anticipated enrollment from the first admission cycle of the self-support program is up to 30 students with an expected minimum enrollment of 22 students, based on a 14% attrition rate.

There were over 4.2 million people employed nationwide in careers requiring this degree and over 176,000 job listings nationally last year, a strong market for new graduates to find employment in this high demand and high growth career field. Anticipated job growth over the next 10 years for related jobs requiring this degree is 16%, much higher than the baseline average of 7-8%. Salaries average at $52K which is higher than the national average of $47K, in a range of $34K to $79K.

2019 research shows high search demand for online master's of social work degrees, showing from 1,000 to 12,100 monthly searches for associated keywords.

Marketing and promotion of the program will be handled by Global Campus and the College of Health and Human Services marketing staff.

Campus Commitment to Provide Adequate Faculty Resources

Faculty who teach state-supported courses in the School of Social Work have been contacted regarding their willingness to participate in the design and delivery of hybrid equivalents to their current face-to-face courses in accord with the Quality Online Learning and Teaching (QOLT) instrument developed by the CSU. The level of faculty interest is very high. They have demonstrated their commitment to teaching working adults in a hybrid format. The academic department is excited about supporting this program by ensuring all instruction is staffed with qualified faculty. Because this is a regular degree program, it will be carefully examined by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE).

There are no variances in curriculum between the existing approved face-to-face and the proposed hybrid programs. However, some electives which are solely face-to-face will not be available in the hybrid format for this degree (see Appendix A).

Anticipated Impact on the Existing State-Supported Program

There is no anticipated impact on state-support regular course offerings because of the self-support program. The hybrid delivery modality, format, accelerated scheduling and target audience (working adults) differentiates this program from the state-side face-to-face program.

Six units of elective credit may be taken from other schools or departments within the university with the consent of the graduate adviser. See student handbook for specific elective policies. To receive the degree, students must earn a 3.0 (B) grade point average in academic courses and demonstrate professional competence for required practicum (Cr for all semesters).

RE: CONCURRENCE WITH SPRING BREAK PROPOSAL

Dear University Senate Chair Wil Weston,

I am writing in my capacity as the Public Health Officer for San Diego County. In light of increasing COVID-19 cases across San Diego County, the state, and the country, I am in support of the alternate Spring Break proposal to allow for short mini-breaks distributed throughout the semester instead of a single 9-day break.

Allowing a 9-day class gap would put San Diego State University (SDSU) and neighboring communities at risk of further surges in cases. Avoiding the 9-day class gap is a proactive approach to protect our communities from preventable outbreaks. The extended, traditional break encourages travel for students, increasing their risk of exposure when flying or driving across states, and putting their families, and SDSU community upon arrival, at higher risk of contracting the virus.

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought additional stress to students, staff, and faculty. There are critical and valid concerns over the negative impact that foregoing spring break can have on the SDSU community's mental health. Nonetheless, the strenuous effects of the pandemic on the community will exacerbate if a new outbreak reaches SDSU. On-campus staff will have to prepare for additional surveillance of students in quarantine, initial and confirmatory testing, increased sanitation and safety concerns, and prolonged restrictions on activities that students, staff and faculty would regularly engage in to cope with the pandemic, adding strain to their mental health.

Consequently, I support your proposal that instead of the traditional 9-day spring break, the school moves to spreading the allotted vacation days throughout the semester. Distributing vacation days will allow the SDSU community to instead have multiple short breaks that will support their recovery and avoid burnout. With this in mind, it will be critical for the school to also be proactive about supporting students, staff and faculty members' mental health.

As the University has done since the start of this pandemic, I trust that the SDSU community will listen to the concerns brought forward, and to faculty and other experts across the community as you take into consideration the proposed spring break alternative.

Respectfully,

November 17, 2020

Dear Colleagues of the University Senate,

We are writing to express support for an alternative proposal to temporarily suspend the traditional 9-day spring break for Spring 2021, and to instead distribute those vacation days across the spring term. It is our firm belief that having a traditional 9-day Spring Break is irresponsible and puts our students, faculty, staff, and our local community at unnecessary risk. This risk is especially concerning since it is preventable. Across the nation, colleges and universities are making similar changes to adjust their Spring schedules; and SDSU should lead the way for our region.

Leaving a 9-day void in the middle of a semester would make us complicit in the impacts of COVID-19 transmission resulting from behaviors encouraged by such an extended break mid-term. This would be true both for our on-campus and off-campus populations. Current research suggests that even the initial outbreak impacting SDSU students was not because of strains circulating in the community but rather was caused by those brought from outside of San Diego. Travel, indoor gatherings (near and far), and close-quarters outside gatherings all invite viral transmission. The impact is not limited to those in face-to-face classes, but extends to the nearly 28,000 SDSU students who are virtual-only at this time, and who live in our San Diego and local communities. Research has also established that the strain that was brought into SDSU in August, was later transmitted outside of SDSU and infected people in greater San Diego. A prolonged break from instructional obligations—even virtual instruction—encourages travel and other behaviors which increase the risk of transmission and infection into our community. To the extent that this is mitigatable within our academic calendar, we have an obligation to do so.

Equally important, we share the concerns around the impact of any decision on the mental health of our community. Included in this concern is our staff, who have also been working diligently to support daily testing, residential housing and education, student conduct and student judicial investigations and education, and many other areas which would be impacted by a surge in cases or high-risk behaviors during spring break. An outbreak triggered by a traditional spring break will have a significant impact on our already taxed staff, who will have to manage all aspects of testing, quarantine, health and safety, cleaning and sanitation, and many other essential activities required to protect health and safety. Further, it is financially irresponsible to proceed with a traditional break given the public health implications given the high financial cost of each of these activities if we experience an outbreak, given the already highly stressed budgetary environment.

We want to emphasize that the impact of an outbreak in our community is not limited to our on-campus student population. Regardless of our spring calendar, the university is committed to maintaining the resources to support the requirement that all in-person and residential students are regularly tested. But the majority of our student population is fully virtual, and living in our broader community. We cannot require testing for this population, but we are no less obligated to make decisions which will support their health and safety. Models have shown that if the United States continues to relax social distancing restrictions and mask-wearing requirements, as many as 500,000 more Americans could die of COVID-19 between now and the end of February. Among college students, while emphasis has been placed across universities on avoiding close contact, closed spaces and crowds, repeated experience in the Fall has shown that reopening and/or significant time without formal programming has resulted in outbreaks around and on campuses. Studies have shown that thousands of college students who visited popular spring break destinations this past year may have become infected with COVID-19, which they subsequently brought back to their campuses and local communities. A single college break spring trip likely led to transmission of SARS-CoV-2 to 64 cases.

In summary, we support an alternative proposal that reduces the traditional spring break and distributes the week of vacation days across the semester, to create smaller, regular breaks for our community to recover and replenish. Such an approach is also supported by scholarly literature in psychology and mental wellbeing—multiple smaller breaks are shown to have a significantly greater positive effect than a single large break. Further, we propose the university launch a mental health and mental wellbeing campaign, paired with increased spring programming, for all students for the Spring semester. While not the focus, we also encourage and ask that the University schedule increased programming and messaging for faculty and staff around mental wellbeing as well.

Further, we believe this updated proposal will also help to address many of the downstream concerns, such as those around graduate/professional licensure, that were raised at the Tuesday, November 10th Senate meeting.

We hope the University Senate will be attentive to our concerns as experts and as faculty, and strongly consider an updated proposal.

Dear Colleagues of the University Senate,

We, the San Diego State University School of Public Health Student Council, agree that it is necessary to suspend the traditional spring break this year. With the COVID-19 pandemic changing on a daily basis, it is imperative that the school takes action to protect the students, staff, faculty, and the general public. As student leaders in public health, we believe that a traditional week-long break could be detrimental to the health of our campus community. Research has shown that the initial outbreak at SDSU was caused by multiple strains brought in from outside the San Diego area. We also understand that another outbreak would place immense stress on the community, mentally and financially.

We, as students, understand the importance of mental health and its fragility. With this in mind, we still believe that an alternative spring break option is the safest path for us during the COVID-19 pandemic. Policy makers across the United States are promoting policies based on current mental health research. This research has shown that providing students with intermittent breaks is essential for reducing stress and maintaining mental health. Additionally, a traditional spring break is likely to cause a substantial increase in COVID-19 cases, resulting in a rise in stress and anxiety after the break ends. Therefore, we believe that an alternative spring break will help prevent this increase in anxiety while also slowing the spread of COVID-19.

We, the School of Public Health Student Council, fully support the proposed alternative spring break. We know that it is in the best interest of the entire SDSU community - students, staff, faculty, and families.

Subject: Action: Writing Placement Assessment (WPA) waiver for Covid-19 impacted semesters

Rationale: In Spring 2020, the Senate voted to relieve students of the requirement to take the Writing Proficiency Exam to guide their fulfillment of the GVAR, out of concern for the public health ramifications of testing center use. Since that time, the testing center has evolved capacity to provide examinations on-line, and after careful collaborative consideration of the best way to support students in meeting the GVAR, the Undergraduate Council now provides this item for review and approval by the SEC.

Beginning spring 2021 semester, for the duration of COVID-impacted semesters, SDSU will suspend the required WPA. To satisfy the GVAR students will

1. enroll directly in one of the approved UD GVAR courses and earn C or better to satisfy the GVAR
OR
2. attempt the WPA exam and follow the placement requirements by enrolling in any required course (or courses). (For information on requirements and placements, see <https://wpa.sdsu.edu>)

PROPOSED MISSION STATEMENT

San Diego State University transforms lives and transcends borders through education, research, and enriching experiences. Our community strives to create a more equitable, compassionate, and prosperous world.

Description: This mission statement was unanimously approved for submission to the University Senate by the Strategic Planning Committee. Initial drafts of this statement were produced by the Mission and Documents subcommittee and modified during a months-long iterative process with the Executive Committee. The themes embodied within this draft are informed by extensive community engagement with over 4,000 students, faculty, staff, administrators, and alumni. In addition, the statement was also informed by the experiential knowledge of committee representatives and collective sense making. Overall, the themes were distilled by the committees to address both the core mission (e.g., research, teaching and learning, enriching experiences) and emergent values (e.g., equity, compassion, prosperity) within the University. The phrase “transcends borders” alludes to both our positionality as a border institution and our commitment to overcoming boundaries that can allow for us to become a more just institution and society.

To: SEC / Senate
From: D.J. Hopkins, Chair, Academic Policy and Planning Committee (AP&P)
Subject: Information: AP&P meeting, Oct. 2020

AP&P met on Tuesday 27 October 2020. The committee is working to address the referral from Senate officers that asks AP&P to provide the Senate with a report on enrollment, retention, and graduation data now that the ERG Report is no longer being produced. The committee needs to establish a new internal procedure for evaluating data and sharing that evaluation. As a way of testing a new approach, at AP&P's next meeting, the Provost will share ERG data that is already being shared with chairs and directors.

AVP Brooks provided an update about the COVID-related policies the committee considered at our last meeting. The Chancellor's Office (CO) has not approved [as of 27 Oct. 2020] a system-wide policy/exception pertaining to the number of withdrawals allowed over a career (EO 1037). [Since AP&P's last meeting, CO has distributed a memo on the subject; AP&P chair was consulted during the development of a policy for Fall 2020, since introduced at Senate by AS President and approved.]

Subcommittee presentation on the status of our draft recommendation memo for more uniform RTP experience across colleges. Brief explanation of last year's process for new members. Discussion, feedback, and planning next steps for revision and further consultation.

Provost and AVP Brooks presented a proposal to start Spring 2021 semester a week later and eliminate spring break. This would be a one-time waiver/emergency exception to policy to permit Provost's Office to alter the calendar with the Senate's approval due to the serious public health crisis. Discussion. AP&P offered its informal support for this proposal.

AP&P was joined by AVP Stefan Hyman who shared two proposals with the committee. 1. Term credit limits. Recommendations: university-wide policy (rather than college by college) that allows students to register for up to 21 credits one week before semester begins; would require academic department approval for more than 21. Adopt for F2021. AP&P offered its informal support for this proposal. 2. Title IV compliance. Two possible solutions: Canvas analytics (though not all faculty use Canvas) or Qwickly Attendance (easier process, but not free; could be automated via ITS). Potential solutions: manual, partially automatic, fully automated. AP&P offered its informal support for this proposal, recommending continued consultative process.

Presidential & Special Events:

President de la Torre and Vice President Vargas hosted The Campanile Foundation Annual Dinner on Thursday, October 29. Nearly 100 former and current TCF board members and their guests attended this virtual event and enjoyed food and beverages that had been delivered to their homes earlier in the day. The create theme of "The Show Must Go On" was woven into every element of the event – from start to finish. We featured a Mime (SDSU alumnus) who worked in tandem with our emcee when introducing the speakers and carried out the theme throughout the program. The program focused on the positive attributes that make SDSU great – thanks to the dedication and vision of our former and current board members. The event was emceed by Seth Mallios, (Professor of Anthropology; University History Curator; and fellow TCF board member). Featured speakers included President de la Torre, Vice President Vargas, AS President Christian Holt and TCF Board Chair, Jerry Sanders. The Zoom platform was used and guests had the option to participate on or off-screen with the majority of participants electing to be on-screen. There was a 15-minute pre-show that featured the Mime and photos submitted through the virtual photo booth. The program was approximately 35-minutes long and included campus updates and favorite SDSU memories that were submitted by our guests. The post-show consisted of informal conversation among the guests.

In an effort to create enthusiasm for the event and to de-rail Zoom fatigue, guests were sent several themed reminders leading up to the event such as animal crackers and vintage animal masks. Nearly 100% of everyone who RSVP'd attended with the exception of one person.

Post-event response was extremely favorable. Vice President Vargas sent a post-event appreciation email to all 113 invited guests and included a link to the program video and virtual photo booth. As a result, there were 77 unique opens to the email (47 were guests who attended the event; 30 did not attend the event). There were 52 clicks on the two links by both attendees and non-attendees.
